FAQ

What is an Emergency Response System?

A system that is installed in a home to give peace of mind to individuals and their families, and helps promote independent living. The Emergency Response System system includes a console and pendant worn either on the wrist or lanyard by the client. If the client needs assistance as a result of a fall or feeling unwell, they can push the button on the pendant to initiate a call to the Cooperative Response Center (CRC).

What happens if I accidentally push the button?

If the button is accidentally pushed or bumped, DO NOT rush to the Emergency Response System console in an attempt to cancel the call. A real emergency situation could arise if you fall. Wait for the central station operator to answer and they will cancel and reset the console after confirming there is not an emergency situation.

Am I charged for pushing the button?

No. A client is never charged for pushing the button. Clients will also be asked to push the button to conduct a monthly test, ensuring the system is working properly.

How far away from the console can the pendant be and still activate a call?

The pendant can be up to 600 feet away from the console and still activate a call. If a client is outside, but close to the home, the pendant may still be able to activate a call, but the central station operator would not be able to communicate with the client unless a window or door was open.

If I am on a walk and slip and fall, will the pendant automatically activate an emergency call?

No you must press the button to activate an emergency call.

Does the pendant come equipped with GPS?

No.

How much does the Emergency Response System service cost?

Equipment is leased to the client until the lease is terminated. For pricing options, please call Evergreen At Home at (920) 237-6242.

System installation can be taken care of within a matter of days after contacting the office.
