Thursday, May 7th at 7pm Performance by Peter Mayer

Peter Mayer is a Minnesota-based singer-songwriter who has spent over 30 years performing across the United States and beyond. Known for his thoughtful lyrics and engaging storytelling, his music explores themes of life, connection, and the wonder of everyday existence, often blending humor with deep reflection. His songs have been recorded by a wide range of respected folk artists and featured in radio playlists and songbooks nationwide. With warm vocals, skilled guitar work, and a gift for meaningful songwriting, his performance will offer an uplifting listening experience.

Monday, May 11th at 3pm Digital Presentation: What’s So Great About Fly-Fishing?

From Hemingway’s Nick Adams and Richard Brautigan’s Trout Fishing in America to A River Runs Through It, fly-fishing holds a lasting place in the American imagination. Often seen as challenging to learn and even harder to master, it is also deeply rewarding and surprisingly accessible when explored more closely. This digital presentation looks at the art of casting and the Zen-like qualities of fly-fishing, offering insight into what makes this activity so captivating and enduring.

Wednesday, May 20th at 3pm Fox Valley Hearing Presentation: Tinnitus is Normal - Understanding the Ringing in Your Ears

This engaging and informative presentation explores the often-misunderstood phenomenon of tinnitus — the perception of sound, such as ringing, buzzing, or humming, without an external source. While tinnitus can sometimes be a symptom of an underlying condition, it is also a common and normal auditory experience that many people encounter at some point in their lives.

Friday, May 29th at 3pm Digital Presentation: Science Fiction that Became Science (and Some that Didn't)

Science fiction in movies and television has long imagined incredible gadgets and extraordinary phenomena that do not exist—at least not yet. But could they one day become reality? And how can we separate real science from fiction? This digital presentation explores popular science fiction concepts such as colonies on other planets, flying cars, and warp drive, examining which ideas may be possible, which are not, and the scientific and societal reasons behind them.
